NOTE TO BERLIN IS MADE PUBLIC

American Government Objects to Sinking of Vessel.

GERMANY ADMITS LIABILITY

Kaiser's Advisers Seek to Have Case of Destruction by German Cruiser of Steamer William P. Frye Settled in Prize Court Instead of by Diplomatic Negotiations.

Washington, June 29.—By agreement with the German foreign office the state department made public the text of the note sent June 24 by the United States, asking Germany to reconsider her refusal to settle by direct diplomatic negotiations, instead of by prize court proceedings, the claim presented on behalf of the captain and owners of the American ship William P. Frye, sunk with her cargo of wheat by the commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

Ambassador Gerard cabled he had delivered the note last Saturday afternoon.

The American government declares that inasmuch as Germany has admitted liability for the sinking of the Frye under the treaty of 1828 prize court proceedings are unnecessary and not binding upon the United States.

Aside from the question of how the indemnity should be paid the note brings out clearly the refusal of the United States to accept the contention that Germany has a right to stop the carrying of contraband by American ships "by the destruction of the contraband and the ship carrying it."

While no mention of submarine warfare was made in either the last German note or the present reply occasion is taken to deny this right, because of a belief that admission of it now might in the future be used as a justification for submarine attacks on American ships.

QUEEN HOPES FOR VICTORY

Victoria, in Berlin, Given Great Ovation by Students.

Berlin, June 29.—The Overseas News agency gave out the following item:

"Queen Victoria of Sweden, while returning from a visit to her mother, the grand duchess of Baden, at Karlsruhe, stayed over for a day in Berlin and was shown conspicuous attention by the German empress and other members of the royal family.

"On her arrival at the capital the queen was given a great ovation by a thousand Berlin students.

"The queen joined in the singing of 'Deutschland Ueber Alles' and on receiving the leaders of a torchlight procession, said:

"My sympathy is with Germany. You may announce this to the world."

ITALIAN PAPERS ARE JUBILANT

Fleet Will Assist in Operations Against Dardanelles.

Berlin, June 29.—The Italian newspapers are jubilant, says the Overseas News agency, over the announcement that Italy is to participate in the operations against the Dardanelles by sending a fleet under the Duke of the Abruzzi to release the larger British warships for important work elsewhere.

A declaration of war on Turkey is said to be considered imminent and the Rome newspapers are quoted as expressing the belief that Italy's action will signify a new era in the politics of the Orient.

AMERICAN SURGEON IS HURT

Dr. W. J. Maloney Receives Gunshot Wound at Dardanelles.

London, June 29.—Dr. W. J. Maloney, formerly a professor in Fordham university, Fordham, N. Y., who has been serving as a surgeon with the Dardanelles expeditionary forces, is in a hospital in Alexandria, Egypt, suffering from paralysis of the right leg and a gunshot wound in the right wrist. He expects to return to the United States.

Dr. Maloney is a son-in-law of Alexander R. McKim, architect, of New York.

TENNESSEE AT ALEXANDRIA

United States Cruiser Brings 600 Refugees from Beirut.

London, June 29.—A Reuter dispatch from Alexandria says that the United States cruiser Tennessee has arrived there from Beirut. She had 600 refugees aboard, among whom were 100 Americans and 450 Italians. Twelve consuls also were brought to Alexandria by the Tennessee.

GENERAL VON BISSING.

Agrees Wheat and Rye Shall Go to Belgians.

RESERVED FOR CIVILIANS

Germany Allows Belgians Wheat and Rye Crops.

London, June 29.—Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the American commission for relief in Belgium, has concluded an agreement with General von Bissing, military governor of Belgium, providing that the wheat and rye crops in the zone occupied by the Germans shall be reserved for the civilian population.

Mr. Hoover, who has returned from Brussels, said:

"The commission is certain that every well wisher of the Belgians will be pleased to know that General von Bissing has confirmed an agreement that the wheat and rye crops in the occupation zone in Belgium will be left for civilians."

ADMITS THEFT OF $40,000

Former Treasurer at Wichita to Be Sentenced Friday.

Wichita, Kan., June 29.—O. W. Jones, former county treasurer here, charged with embezzling $40,000 of public funds, pleaded guilty to three charges of falsification of records and one charge of embezzlement in the district court. He will be sentenced Friday.

SERIOUS FLOOD AT EDMONTON.

Edmonton, Alta., June 29.—With upwards of 500 homes wholly or partly submerged, fifty of them swept from their foundations and carried down the river, Edmonton is experiencing the most disastrous flood in its history. Since Saturday night the Saskatchewan river has risen more than twenty-one feet and is rising at the rate of six inches an hour.

ZINC MINES CLOSE DOWN

Joplin Producers Take Action When Employees Strike.

Joplin, Mo., June 29.—Several of the largest zinc producers of the Joplin district announced a shutdown of their properties until July 9, after 800 of their underground employees had gone on strike for higher wages.

The operators informed the strikers that no attempt at operating the mining plants would be made until then. Wage increases were granted recently when zinc ore reached a high price and last week when prices dropped some of the operators likewise reduced employees' wages.

TO CHECK FRENCH ADVANCE

Germans Sending Reinforcements Into Alsace.

Paris, June 29.—The Germans have sent reinforcements against the newly acquired French positions at Metz.

The Germans also attacked French positions at Colonne and at several other points along the Meuse heights. In each instance these assaults were repulsed.

BONES ARE PATCHED WITH SILVER NAILS.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 29.—George Mulkolland of South Byron is walking again after having been the subject of an experiment in bone carpentering. His fractured hip, which it was thought would make him a cripple for life, has been put together again by being tacked up with tennipenny nails. The doctors silver plated two steel nails and hammered them through the broken portions of the bone.

The Rulers of Rumania and the Countries Wanted

King Ferdinand

Queen Marie

The dream of a "Greater Rumania" just now being indulged in by the aggressive politicians of that Balkan kingdom is imposing a very difficult problem upon the allies. As the price of her entrance into the war Rumania demands a large part of Bukovina and Transylvania and suggests that Bessarabia would make a very desirable Rumanian province. The territory demanded in Bukovina and Transylvania contains almost 4,000,000 people, the city of Czernowitz and thousands of square miles of the richest agricultural land in Europe. Russia cannot yet accede to the demands, for the reason that she has already promised some of the desired territory to Serbia. With the recent losses in Galicia, however, in mind, the allies need Rumania's aid more than ever before, and it is not likely that Serbia may be persuaded to yield her prior claim.

PEOPLE OF UNITED STATES WOULD VOTE TO PROHIBIT THE EXPORTATION OF AMMUNITION

(By United Press)

Berlin, June 29.—Doctor Anton Mayer reported in an article in the Der Tage this afternoon that the people of the United States would vote to prohibit the exportation of ammunition to the allies if a popular referendum vote was taken. He says that the Americans condemn Germany for violating their treaty with Belgium and for the sinking of the Lusitania, and are unable to see these things as the Germans do. He also says that the press of the United States has been unsuccessful in remaining neutral, including German publications, excepting in a few laudable instances. The German-Americans strongly remember the land of their birth. He also stated that Germans often mistake ammunition orders for "filled" orders.

SUPPLIES OF AMMUNITION

(By United Press)

Liverpool, June 29.—The Cymira arrived carrying heavy supplies of munitions of war for the allies, after extraordinary precaution having been taken. The passengers were given life belts and instructed how to use them, boats were swung out and prepared for instant use, the details of how to get into the boats rapidly were fully drilled into the passengers.

ARRAS BATTLE RESUMED

(By United Press)

Paris, June 29.—An official statement from the war department says that the battle north of Arras has been resumed after several days inaction having been preceded by an artillery attack. The French infantry rushed the German positions several times at points near Souchez to the northern outskirts of Arras.

BRANA AWARDED MEDAL

(By United Press)

Rome, June 29.—For capturing the first Austrian flag since the beginning of the hostilities Infantryman Brana has been awarded a silver medal and given $2000

REFUSE VACTIAN'S MAIL

(By United Press)

Washington, June 29.—Officials said if mail for the Vactian had been refused to be transmitted by Italy that it must only refer to mail via Austria. The United States is not sending mail for Italy via Austria.

WITHDRAW GALICIA ARMIES

(By United Press)

Petrograd, June 29.—Along the hundred mile front Grand Duke Nicholas is steadily withdrawing the Galician armies toward the strongly fortified line prepared before the evacuation of Lemberg. The retirement continues from the Russian border to the region of Stanislaw in the south.

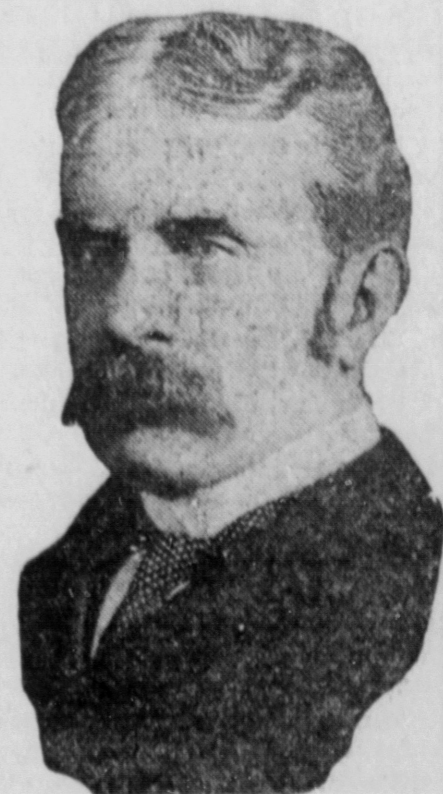

BATTLE IN CLOUDS

(By United Press)

Petrograd, June 29.—During a battle in the clouds overhanging the Cheidag mountain in Caucasus the Russians defeated the Turks with heavy losses. The enemy attacked under cover of heavy mists. The artillery trained down the mountain with deadly effect.

SIR ROBERT L. BORDEN.

Canadian Premier Is En Route to England.

BORDEN GOING TO ENGLAND

Canadian Premier to Discuss a Number of Questions.

Ottawa, Ont., June 29.—Sir Robert L. Borden, prime minister of Canada, left for New York to take passage for England.

Sir Robert will be absent from Canada two months. In England he will discuss with the British government a number of questions, including war financing, the command of Canadian overseas divisions and the manufacture of shells in Canada for the allied forces.

DECIDES IN FAVOR OF GOVERNMENT

Referee Rules on Ownership of Indian Lands.

Minneapolis, June 29.—In a decision just filed George R. O'Reilly, master in chancery named by the federal district court to try and determine suits brought by the government involving title to more than 200,000 acres of land on Chippewa Indian reservations in Minnesota, decided the first case in favor of the government.

Mr. O'Reilly holds that, under the provisions of the Clapp act, passed in 1906, and authorizing Indians of mixed blood to transfer their lands, O-mo-de-a-quay, an Indian woman, had no authority to transfer her land, that all the conveyances of her land are illegal and that title to the land still rests with the government, with the Indian woman holding a trust patent. Mr. O'Reilly holds that the government has proven that the Indian woman is a fullblood and as such she had no right to transfer her land.

The decision is of great importance to the Indians of the White Earth reservation, for it means that unless it is reversed on appeal hundreds of land transactions made by fullblood Indians will be invalidated. Many of these lands have been transferred and retransferred and many white settlers and white business men in the vicinity of the reservation will be affected by the decision.

The decision grows out of the federal investigation of alleged land frauds on the White Earth reservation. The government instituted suit in 13,300 cases asking that deeds made by Indians be set aside.

It is probably an appeal will be taken and the cases decided eventually by the United States supreme court.

Detroit Motor Company Bankrupt.

Detroit, Mich., June 29.—The Briggs-Detroit company, a local motor car company, was adjudicated bankrupt by Lee S. Joslyn, referee in bankruptcy here. The liabilities of the concern are estimated at $350,000. It was stated that the property probably would inventory in the neighborhood of $175,000.

ATTACK AUSTRIAN SEAPORT

Italians Drop Bombs on the City of Cattaro.

Rome, June 29.—Italian aeroplanes bombarded the Austrian fortified seaport of Cattaro. Bombs are reported to have seriously damaged the fortifications and the docks.

Cattaro is the most southern port of the Austrian province of Dalmatia and lies near the Montenegrin border. Its harbor and gulf form one of the strongest fortified centers of the Adriatic.

KEEPING WATCH ON DISTURBERS

United States Trying to Nip New Mexican Revolts.

WILL PROSECUTE VIGOROUSLY

Department of Justice Is Determined to Take Action on All Violations of Neutrality Laws Irrespective of the Prominence of the Individuals Involved.

Washington, June 29.—The United States government has determined that, so far as it can prevent, there shall be no further revolutionary movements in Mexico and that American territory at any rate shall not be used as a base for such expeditions.

This, it became known officially, led to the arrest of General Victoriano Huerta and General Pascual Orozco at El Paso and forms the ground for strict surveillance now being maintained by agents of the department of justice on Generals Felix Diaz, Mondragon, Blanquet and Felipe Angeles, and other Mexicans of prominence now living in the United States.

Assistant Attorney General Warren conferred with Secretary Lansing, after which the intention of the government to prosecute vigorously all violations of neutrality laws irrespective of the prominence of the individuals or their affiliations, was revealed.

According to the information thus far gathered there are at least four separate and distinct groups apart from the Villa and Carranza supporters in the United States who are active politically in the Mexican situation.

Whenever such activity shall reach the point of setting on foot a military expedition from the United States arrests will follow, according to Mr. Warren, who is handling the case.

The information gathered by government agents discloses that the various groups have a common purpose in opposing Carranza and Villa, but are working independently of each other.

Inquiry is being made to learn what financial interests are supporting the various factions and there are hints that citizens of one of the belligerent countries of Europe are involved in the plots.

MURDER MYSTERY GROWING

Late Discoveries Add to Horror on North Dakota Farm.

Grand Forks, N. D., June 29.—Five murders at one time, when he wiped out an entire family, are laid at the door of Eugene Butler, the reclus farmer of Niagara, whose death in the asylum for the insane at Jamestown four years ago, draws a curtain before one of the most mysterious cases ever brought to light in the Northwest.

Examination of six skeletons found under the Butler home near Shawnee goes to show that five murders were committed at one time, when a man, woman and three children were slain. At some later date one man was killed. The bodies of the five members of the family were buried in a single hole, while that of the other victim was buried about ten feet from them.

The five were buried in a hole that was dug from the outside of the house under the foundation and there are indications that in order to hide his crime Butler was compelled to break the legs of at least two of his victims.

The theory has been advanced that the skeletons of the members of the family may be those of relatives of Butler who came to visit him. If such is the case they met death almost instantly upon their arrival, for the neighbors have no recollection of such visitors.

Butler died in 1911 and his body was taken to Middlecourt, N. Y., his former home, for burial.

British Bark Is Torpedoed.

London, June 29.—The British bark Dunfresshire of 2,565 tons gross, which sailed from San Francisco Jan. 22 for Dublin, with a cargo of barley, was sunk by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Milford Haven, Wales.

SAID ITALY HAS BROKEN WITH TURKEY.
Paris, June 29.—Announcement was made at the French ministry of war that, according to the Italian press, Italy has broken diplomatic relations with Turkey.
Italy, it is added, will send troops to the Dardanelles.

An interesting spectator at the ball game Sunday was little Leonard Arthur Bush, age 3 and 1/2 years, mascot of the Brainerd team. He is the son of Conductor and Mrs. John W. Bush and his illustrious brothers are famous in the baseball world.
There is Leslie, first string pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, Richard, strong in pitching and the field,
Charles, once playing regularly with Brainerd. John W. Bush was a great ball player in his younger days and attends every Brainerd game it is possible for him to see.

His good luck was amazing," reads the newspaper story of his "success."
"and in a short time he had run the five dollar bill into many thousands.
Then he became a plunger. In one race he won $30,000. Whenever he made a bet he was followed by scores who wanted to bet as he did because he could bet on a three legged horse, and his luck would bring the horse home a winner."

That's the bright side of the story.
Here's the other:

Only a few days ago England was arrested on a charge of housebreaking. Arraigned in court, he said:

"I had all the money that I ever wished for at one time. Now I am down and out—nothing but a common thief. Starvation has come upon me, and I couldn't help myself. Probably if I never won a bet I wouldn't be where I am today."

Suppose—

England had lost that first $5 bet.
It is probable that he would have gone back to his car, satisfied that the lie on the race track was not for him.
The $5 would have loomed up very large in his memory and the remembrance would have kept him from risking money foolishly thereafter.

It is not certain, of course, that sticking to business would have brought him fortune. Not many men have found the post of conductor of a trolley car a stepping stone to wealth or fame.

But—

It is certain that honest industry on a trolley car or elsewhere would not have landed him in court under a charge of burglary.

Long Distance Firing.

Traveling swifter than a rifle ball, a shot fired at a range of twenty-one miles is nearly two minutes on its way.
At 45 degrees elevation it rises more than two miles above the loftiest mountain, higher than man can mount in a balloon and live, before it begins to descend. The great guns of warships cannot be elevated more than 15 degrees. No warship could shell New York from a distance at sea equalling
the range of land artillery.—New York World.

While the dries were confident of Crow Wing county early returns gave the wets a big lead which was maintained. The majority, it is predicted, will be 200. Brainerd, the largest city, which voted dry in the local option election last spring, voted wet by a large majority. There are three saloons in the county.

Breckenridge, the largest city in Wilkin county, has eleven saloons.
There are four other saloons in the county in as many towns.

Grant county went dry by a majority of more than 100, according to reports. Three precincts are to be heard from. Herman, the model town, is the largest point. It has three saloons.

Wilkin, Mower and Grant Vote to Close Saloons.

CROW WING REMAINS WET

Twenty-five Places Where Liquor is Sold Will Go Out of Business in Mower County—Brainerd, the Largest City in Crow Wing County, Votes Wet by a Large Majority.

Fargo, N. D., June 29.—What is regarded as a move not to test the constitutionality of the county option law was the withdrawal of thirty-one licenses by Moorhead saloonkeepers at a session of the Moorhead city council.

St. Paul, June 29.—Dry forces captured three counties out of the four voting on county option, Crow Wing being the only one to join the liquor column.

Wilkin county reported that complete returns showed the county had voted dry by ten votes.

Mower and Grant are the other counties to vote dry.

The prohibitionists in Mower county, of which Austin is the largest city, were given a majority that may reach 300 votes. More ballots were cast than in any other election. Four of the six wet villages in the county voted dry. Twenty-five saloons are voted out.

Bath Tub Murder Aired in Court

(By United Press)

London, June 29.—The Crown scored heavily in the trial of Frank Smith, the man charged with murdering several of his brides in bath tubs by drowning. Evidence was introduced by expert witnesses to show that it was impossible for their deaths to have been accidental as the defense claimed. Further evidence showed that the Mundy girl clutched
a piece of soap, and the defense argued that the woman grasping against a man alleged to be attempting to drown her could not maintain her hold on a piece of soap as indicated.

Bath Tub Murder Aired in Court

(By United Press)

London, June 29.—The Crown scored heavily in the trial of Frank Smith, the man charged with murdering several of his brides in bath tubs by drowning. Evidence was introduced by expert witnesses to show that it was impossible for their deaths to have been accidental as the defense claimed. Further evidence showed that the Mundy girl clutched
a piece of soap, and the defense argued that the woman grasping against a man alleged to be attempting to drown her could not maintain her hold on a piece of soap as indicated.

WOMAN'S REALM

WOLD'S FASHION NOTES

Collars in White Leather—Nothing Smarter for a Summer Tailored Suit

We have had collars and cuffs of every kind of fabric, with pique and organdy and ottoman silk predominating. Now we have them in white leather and there is nothing smarter for the summer tailored suit. Mme. Becker, of the Fashion Art League of America, has originated the idea and a set designed by her recently looked particularly smart with a suit of French serge in mid-night blue. The collar is rather narrow; the cuffs are somewhat broader. Both collar and cuffs are pinked at the edges and embroidered in dots of varying sizes in different colors, such as dark blue, mahogany red and green.

One cannot but observe, as the season advances, that the color-schemes of the wedding gowns are becoming deeper in hue. A bride of social distinction recently wore a lavender chiffon and silver tissue instead of the timeworn white, and her bravery in asserting her individuality was commented on. Some mid-summer brides in Chicago are using color ideas in Japanese effects as well as the paler hues.

The sweeping popularity of the sports hat at this time lends interest to a creation of this description designed by Mme. Marguerite for wear with crash and linen suits. It is made of white crash and glazed chintz, which gives it the effect of white oilcloth, heightened somewhat by the white background which has a decoration in conventional flower design. Such a hat would be a proper accompaniment for almost any out-of-door costume and would meanwhile withstand rain or dampness most admirably.

From Paris comes the news that practically all advance models are adaptations of the late summer and spring modes, and no particular new developments are shown. Skirts continue full, although a few couturiers are harkening back to tight underskirts.

There is little new in bodices. They are quite loose and vague, but occasionally one sees a semi-fitting or even tight-fitting garment necessitated by the 1830 modes.

The dress and coat will this year, if rumors are to be credited, supersede the coat and skirt or three-piece costume. The coat will be long and something on the order of the Mar-tial et Armand suit which has just been received. Here the coat is very long, revealing only a few inches of the skirt and is developed in brown cloth. The skirt section is plain and is of brown velvet and the high collar and cuffs are of the velvet. Cloth and velvet are combined on the skirt of the dress and red chiffon and brown embroidery are added to the bodice to dress it up.

In one of her top coats Callot shows the exaggerated fullness of the Louis XV period in the flare below the hips. This model was developed in faille and lined to the hips with rose satin. The edges, the tops of the cuffs, and the armholes were bound in inch-wide black moire ribbon, the touch of moire being a hallmark this season of the Collot Soeurs. A wide sash, knotted once in the front, accents the low waist line which Callot favors.—From H. W. Gossard Co., courtesy H. F. Michael Co.

REVIVALISTS TRIUMPH OVER BASEBALL PLAYERS

Los Angeles, Cal., June 29.—Ball players and revivalists clashed over possession of a baseball diamond in the suburbs and the revivalists triumphed. It happened thusly. The Arroyo Seco nine arrived at its park one morning to find a pulpit erected in the pitchers box and pews on the home plate. Their wild cries were no match for the oratory of the revivalists. Desperately they attempted to play a game, but the pitcher found it impossible to hurl curves while standing beside the preacher and the batsman had no room to swing his ash among the pews. So the team, although leading the County League, surrendered; and the revivalists still hold the field.

The Chicago Strike

By George R. Holmes

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, June 29.—Chicago's recent street car strike, the greatest one this nation has ever seen from the standpoint of effectiveness and the number of men involved, demonstrated two things conclusively—how completely a great city is at the mercy of one of its parts, and how the ingenuity and initiative of the American people comes forth with a smash and a bang and overcomes all obstacles.

For two days the second largest city in the country was tied up. Not a wheel turned on over 1200 miles of rails to carry a million workers to their places of employment. Yet Chicago was at its desk, or its counter or workbench the second morning on the specified time. When one takes into consideration the vast amount of territory covered by Chicago, it makes this feat stand out even more remarkable. Some people were fifteen and eighteen miles from their jobs. Yet they got there—and on time, too.

It was somewhat of a shock the first morning. True, there had been talk of a strike and a tie-up, but with characteristic American unpreparedness, no arrangements had been made to "get down to work." So when Chicago rubbed the sleep from its eyes the first morning there was a great problem confronting it. A million jobs were waiting in the loop with a million workers from one to 18 miles away from them. And no cars. Some walked. Some rushed frantically to the telephone to get a taxicab or a friend who had a car, some went out on the street and hailed grocers wagons. The more fortunate hustled to the steam roads. But they all got there.

Getting home at night was a problem. There were a few elevated trains running carrying policemen, detectives, reporters and photographers, but the chance of stopping a brick with their heads didn't appeal to Chicagoans. In the two days, the elevated trains didn't carry over half a dozen passengers and those did it for the sensation because they got on not knowing there was a strike.

That evening, from 4 to 7 o'clock, Chicago was a strange looking city. In the Loop district there was a veritable army of every kind of vehicle except a street car. The incessant screeching of impatient automobile horns made a bedlam of noise. Big moving vans, horse drawn, lined the curbs, each with a driver and a hawker. Sandwiched in between the big horse and motor trucks were surreys, buggies, strange looking contraptions rescued from vehicle graveyards, and a scattering of farm wagons. They all got home somehow. It cost them all the way from five cents to five dollars, but they got there.

The next morning everybody was "set." Things went off as smoothly as clock-work. Chicago walked down and grabbed a bus with the same equanimity that it had grabbed a street car the week before. When they reached the Loop, the newsboys calling the extras, announcing that the strike was over.

One of the most remarkable features of the whole thing was the good nature with which everybody took it. There was a spirit of adventure in going down town and not being sure how one was going to get home. They grinned at each other across the bus tops. Another thing—neighborliness was proven. The papers called on the people to be neighborly with their cars and they responded loyally. Hardly an empty back seat was seen on the streets.

GIRLS WITH BEAUTIFUL FACES OR GRACEFUL FIGURES

American girls have a world wide reputation for beauty, but, at the same time, there are girls in our cities who possess neither beauty of face nor form, because in these instances they suffer from nervousness, the result of disorders of the womanly organism. At regular intervals they suffer so much that their strength leaves them; they are so prostrated that it takes days for them to recover their strength. Of course, such period is distress has its bad effect on the nervous system. The withered and drawn faces, the dark circles and crow's feet about the eyes, the straight figure without those curves which lend so much to feminine beauty are the unmistakable signs of womanly disorders.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the entire female system perfectly regulated and in excellent condition.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive confidential advice from a staff of specialists, that's free; also 136-page book on women's diseases sent free.—Adv.

Everybody was taking everybody else home and calling for them at night.

The "hawkers" helped a lot too. They joked the people into enjoying all sorts of discomforts. One was especially noteworthy. He was collecting fares, and as he went along he chanted in a nasal twang "Dime fer driver, dime fer me, not a damn cent for the company." A roar of laughter greeted him every time he finished.

But Chicago, nevertheless, is sincerely glad it is all over.

DOUBLE SERVICE AUTOMOBILE TIRES

Guaranteed 7000 Miles Service
ABSOLUTELY PUNCTUREPROOF
Double Service Tires are double the thickness of the best standard make tires. This 100 per cent greater wearing surface naturally gives that much more mileage and service. The average of 12 miles of tough fabric and one inch surface thread rubber makes these tires absolutely punctureproof.

These tires excel all others for use in the country over rough and rugged roads as well as on hard pavements. They are as easy riding and resilient as any other pneumatic tire—the air space and pressure being the same.

They are the most economical and "care free" tires made and are used where tires must be depended on and tire troubles cannot be tolerated. Many Double Service style tires are in use in the United States government and European War service.

Our output is limited to a certain amount, but for a short time we offer the following reduced special prices as an Introductory Offer:

Chicago, June 29—Chicago's recent street car strike, the greatest one this nation has ever seen from the standpoint of effectiveness and the number of men involved, demonstrated two things conclusively—how completely a great city is at the mercy of one of its parts, and how the ingenuity and initiative of the American people comes forth with a smash and a bang and overcomes all obstacles.

For two days the second largest city in the country was tied up. Not a wheel turned on over 1200 miles of rails to carry a million workers to their places of employment. Yet Chicago was at its desk, or its counter or workbench the second morning on the specified time. When one takes into consideration the vast amount of territory covered by Chicago, it makes this feat stand out even more remarkable. Some people were fifteen and eighteen miles from their jobs. Yet they got there—and on time, too.

It was somewhat of a shock the first morning. True, there had been talk of a strike and a tie-up, but with characteristic American unpreparedness, no arrangements had been made to "get down to work." So when Chicago rubbed the sleep from its eyes the first morning there was a great problem confronting it. A million jobs were waiting in the loop with a million workers from one to 18 miles away from them. And no cars. Some walked. Some rushed frantically to the telephone to get a taxicab or a friend who had a car, some went out on the street and hailed grocers wagons. The more fortunate hustled to the steam roads. But they all got there.

Getting home at night was a problem. There were a few elevated trains running carrying policemen, detectives, reporters and photographers, but the chance of stopping a brick with their heads didn't appeal to Chicagoans. In the two days, the elevated trains didn't carry over half a dozen passengers and those did it for the sensation because they got on not knowing there was a strike.

That evening, from 4 to 7 o'clock, Chicago was a strange looking city. In the Loop district there was a veritable army of every kind of vehicle except a street car. The incessant screeching of impatient automobile horns made a bedlam of noise. Big moving vans, horse drawn, lined the curbs, each with a driver and a hawker. Sandwiched in between the big horse and motor trucks were surreys, buggies, strange looking contraptions rescued from vehicle graveyards, and a scattering of farm wagons. They all got home somehow. It cost them all the way from five cents to five dollars, but they got there.

The next morning everybody was "set." Things went off as smoothly as clock-work. Chicago walked down and grabbed a bus with the same equanimity that it had grabbed a street car the week before. When they reached the Loop, the newsmen calling the extras, announcing that the strike was over.

One of the most remarkable features of the whole thing was the good nature with which everybody took it. There was a spirit of adventure in going down town and not being sure how one was going to get home. They grinned at each other across the bus tops. Another thing—neighborliness was proven. The papers called on the people to be neighborly with their cars and they responded loyally. Hardly an empty back seat was seen on the streets.

GIRLS WITH BEAUTIFUL FACES OR GRACEFUL FIGURES

American girls have a world wide reputation for beauty, but, at the same time, there are girls in our cities who possess neither beauty of face nor form, because in these instances they suffer from nervousness, the result of disorders of the womanly organism. At regular intervals they suffer so much that their strength leaves them; they are so prostrated that it takes days for them to recover their strength. Of course, such periods is distress has its bad effect on the nervous system. The withered and drawn faces, the dark circles and crow's feet about the eyes, the straight figure without those curves which lend so much to feminine beauty are the unmistakable signs of womanly disorders.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the entire female system perfectly regulated and in excellent condition.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form. Then address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive confidential advice from a staff of specialists, that's free; also 136-page book on women's diseases sent free.—Adv.

Everybody was taking everybody else home and calling for them at night.

The "hawkers" helped a lot too. They joked the people into enjoying all sorts of discomforts. One was especially noteworthy. He was collecting fares, and as he went along he chanted in a nasal twang "Dime fer driver, dime fer me, not a damn cent for the company." A roar of laughter greeted him every time he finished.

But Chicago, nevertheless, is sincerely glad it is all over.

DOUBLE SERVICE AUTOMOBILE TIRES

Guaranteed 7000 Miles Service
ABSOLUTELY PUNCTUREPROOF

Double Service Tires are double the thickness of the best standard make tires.

This 100 per cent greater wearing surface naturally gives that much more mileage and service. The average of 12 miles of tough fabric and one inch surface tread rubber makes these tires absolutely punctureproof.

These tires excel all others for use in the country over rough and rugged roads as well as on hard pavements. They are as easy riding and resistant as any other pneumatic tire—the air space and pressure being the same.

They are the most economical and "care free" tires made and are used where tires must be depended on and tire troubles cannot be tolerated. Many Double Service style tires are in use in the United States government and European War service.

Our output is limited to a certain amount, but for a short time we offer the following reduced special prices as an introductory offer:

	Tires	Extra Heavy
28x3	$ 7.25	$2.20
30x3	8.40	2.50
30x3 1/2	10.85	3.10

The result of the election on the proposition of county option was somewhat of a surprise to a great number of people who taking their cue from the local option election in April, at which time the city voted out the saloons by a majority of 177, supposed that the same conditions would control in the county option vote as far as the city was concerned. The unexpected happened, however, and the city voted wet at the election yesterday by a majority of 188, and the reversal of opinion in this matter is attributed to several causes, one of which was the mixing of the county option matter with the bond issue and the raise in the tax levy and voting on all three propositions at one time, and another prominent factor was the stand taken by certain organizations. Political trades at the time the local option vote was taken, and which did not hold good at the county option election, are also held to have made considerable difference in the vote. If Brainerd had not reversed herself on the stand taken county option would have carried. However, the matter is settled for two years during which time the county will be wet and Brainerd will be dry, reports current on the streets that a vote to reverse the local option will be held at once, to the contrary, notwithstanding. No vote on that proposition can be taken until the time fixed by the statutes expires, and the result of the election yesterday has no bearing on the case.

The defeat of the proposed amendment to the charter providing for the issuance of bonds with which to continue street work means that nothing of that nature can be done, there is no remedy until funds are provided in a legal way and the vote of the people seems to be that that way will not be provided. The defeat of the increase in the tax levy to meet expenses in running the city will result in a reduction of the police force, curtailment in street lighting and street retrenchment in all lines. With no saloon licenses the funds are curtailed and the city has no income with which to meet the pay rolls without an increase in taxation.

FISHING INDUSTRY INJURED

Washington, June 29. (Special correspondence)—Workmen in all lines of industry have learned by sad experience within the past two years that in a country of diversified resources, such as this, no enterprise will thrive by itself alone. The laborer in one line of industry depends for his market upon the prosperity of the workmen of other industries. Laborers employed in a factory for example, must find buyers for their output, and in order that those buyers shall buy freely and at remunerative prices, it is necessary that they in turn shall have a market for what they produce and at a compensation that affords them a profit.

Although fishing is an industry of chief interest along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and receives little attention from residents of other sections, it nevertheless furnishes a means of livelihood for a very large number of people, who, in turn, are patrons of other industries. How American fishermen may be adversely affected is illustrated by a report of the U. C. Commissioner of Fisheries showing that last November a Norwegian steamer landed 1,500,000 pounds of Iceland codfish in Gloucester, Mass. Had this cargo been entered under republican tariff law it would have paid $11,250 of revenue to the government. The Underwood tariff law struck out the three-quarters of a cent duty on fresh fish, and this shipment came in free. Imagine the effect on the fish market in Gloucester the day that cargo of fish was entered and sold in competition with the catch of American fishermen.

Mr. Fred Davis, engaged in catching and packing fish in Gloucester, testifying before the Ways and Means committee in a vain attempt to have the duty on fresh fish retained, said that the fishing business on the Atlantic coast is conducted on a share basis. "The fisherman is a sharer in the gain or loss of the trip which he makes," said Mr. Davis. "Therefore, if the price of his fish is to be reduced, he suffers. If he comes into the market with his fresh fish and that price is down 2 cents, or that price is up 5 cents, he shares three-quarters of the difference between the 2 cents and the 5 cents. The vessel would take one-quarter, or one-fifth of it, on whatever lay she is on. He has got to pay for the expenses of that trip. If that trip comes in in debt, when the fish goes down to a low price, that fisherman will come in in debt; and he will have nothing for the trip, and will have to wait a month, perhaps without one cent. He has no money to take home to his family."

Let one imagine himself to be a fisherman returning from a long "lay," after having undergone the perils of the sea and the rigors of November weather on the Banks. The vessel is well loaded with cod, and he has expectations of a fair price and a few blissful days with his family. He swings into port to find that a cargo of fish from Iceland is just unloading and the price gone to Davy Jones' locker. Instead of a profit, he is mulcted for his share of three-quarters the loss of the trip. Nothing left for his family. Will his heart glow with gratitude for the free-trade democracy? Not much. The Gloucester fisherman is reputed to have a large command of strong language, but a sturgeon may safely be wagered against a sardine that he did not have enough to satisfactorily express himself on the day that Icelandic cargo hove into port.

In 1914 the free imports of fresh fish amounted to 55,000,000 pounds. It will be astonishing to some people to learn that some of the imports are of fish caught by Japanese in the Pacific ocean and sold in the markets at Gloucester, Mass. The Japanese fisherman is satisfied with a wage upon which the American fisherman cannot live.

The farmer and manufacturer and miner may not feel much interest in the fishing industry but the American fisherman is one of the buyers of their products and the extent of his prosperity measures his buying capacity.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 29—Henry Soth narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation from his automobile. He went into his garage alone and after starting the big engine in his car closed the garage door. The engine consumed the oxygen in the small space and the escaping exhaust rendered him unconscious. An employee rescued him.

Winnipeg, Man., June 29—"The time will soon come when every physically fit Canadian will have to join in the fight for the existence of the British empire and the continuance of civilization," said Hon. Arthur Meighen of Portage La Prairie, in an address today. He appealed to Canadians to respond to the latest call for 35,000 Canadians.

St. Paul, Minn., June 29—Following the lead of the state of Wisconsin, the state of Minnesota today announced that aviators will be employed in the patrol of Northern Minnesota forests.

Benidji, Minn., June 29—Louis Sporehase a farmer who resided two miles north of Puposky is dead here today without knowing of the death of his wife which occurred April 17. Mrs. Sporehase was the victim of Bright's disease and was taken to the hospital on April 16. She died the following day. Mr. Sporehase was taken to the hospital on April 14, following a stroke of paralysis. His condition was so serious that it was not considered advisable by his physicians to tell him of his wife's death. He never rallied.

Benidji, Minn., June 29—Ten-strike, 18 miles north of Benidji, is to have a canning factory. It is being opened by S. C. Maule and will be known as S. C. Maule & Company. It will have a capacity of 1,000 cans daily and will be in operation within the next 30 days it was announced today.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 29—Despite abundant rain in this section crops excepting corn, are flourishing. The average stand of corn is about three inches, but it has a firm root. Crows have undoubtedly suffered the greatest in their strawberry crop. The excessive rain during the ripening period prevented picking of the berries before moulding. H. F. Hanson, one of the largest growers of strawberries in southern Minnesota, stated today that his pickers have been able to go into the fields only a part of three days and he will lose about a third of the ripened crop. Never before have prospects for a bumper apple crop been so promising. Raspberries, currants, gooseberries and cherries give promise for a full crop.

WHAT WAR MOVES MEAN

An indication of the immense additions which have been made to the British navy since the outbreak of the war is contained in supplementary naval estimates to be introduced in parliament this week providing for 50,000 additional men. This number represents an increase of one-third over the navy's personnel as it was when hostilities began.

One year ago, the 150,000 men in the British navy included large numbers occupying shore posts at the admiralty offices and at the various dockyard and naval stations. The additions made since then are practically entirely for service at sea, and it is to provide for these that supplementary estimates are to be sanctioned by law. How many new warships have been completed by Great Britain since last August is a closely guarded secret. But the number is unquestionably very large. It requires from 750 to 900 men to operate the newest types of superdreadnought and, even though all the 50,000 new sailors now to be provided for may not be needed immediately, a small part of them would serve to equip a large fleet of the major fighting craft.

England was building 10 superdreadnoughts of her own when the war broke out, as well as two for Turkey. These later were taken over by the government and Turkey was compensated for them. Four other capital ships had also been voted by parliament, so that a total of 16 superdreadnoughts were under way on the declaration of war. This number is three more than was the strength of the entire German dreadnought battleship fleet at the commencement of hostilities.

It is quite within the bounds of possibility that all these 16 first line ships have been made ready for battle during the last 11 months. The original dreadnought was laid down in December, 1905, and was completed in October, 1906. The admiralty issued orders that a test for construction under wartime conditions was to be made with the first dreadnought, and the vessel was ready for the fighting line 10 months after the keel was laid.

Besides concentrating on new fleets of superdreadnoughts, the admiralty has been hurrying work on light cruisers to replace those destroyed by the Germans. New torpedo boat destroyers, too, are being hurriedly built, for their presence in additional numbers has been made imperative by the German submarine warfare.

It is being privately whispered in England that, since last August, the British admiralty has built a supplementary fleet as powerful as the entire American navy.

TELLS FRANCE'S SIDE

By William Phil Simms
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Paris, May 30 (By mail to New York)—Deputy Marquis de Chambrun, member of the committee on foreign affairs and great grandson of General LaFayette whose name figures in American history by the side of that of George Washington, has been repeatedly asked by American sympathizers with the Allies' cause, this question:

"The Germans are using means to spread their propaganda in the United States. They are sending writers, lecturers, diplomatic representatives and others to tell their side of the story. Why don't you, who speak and write English perfectly and whose name will count for a great deal in our country, cross the Atlantic and tell France's side?"

The Marquis, whose wife is an American woman, her maiden name being Miss Margaret River Nichols, and step-daughter of Bellamy Storer, of Cincinnati, has always modestly replied France has no need to adopt such methods. Invited by the United Press to write his ideas on this subject, he consented. Here is his article:

One of the characteristics of the present war is the propaganda made by belligerent nations in neutral countries, through publicity and by various means, in view of enlisting sympathy and gaining moral support. Why then have we refrained from sending propagandists to America for the purpose of influencing public opinion in favor of the Allies? The answer is simple. We rely on the justice of our cause. We have full confidence in the clear sightedness of the American people.

It is indeed difficult for us to separate the United States from the cause of liberty. When France first learned of the struggle for American independence, "her heart was enlisted" and our government was soon obliged to follow the popular feeling aroused by the departure of LaFayette who had spontaneously gone over to fight for the American colonies in open rebellion. Thus the just cause of your independence had awakened in France an irresistible national feeling. In the mind of thinking men the great prestige of the United States abroad still rests on the freedom of her institutions, on the recognized worth of her constitution, even more than on her great material prosperity. We feel sure that it is superfluous, as far as the free citizens of such a republic are concerned, to resort to the petty means of propaganda in the present crisis. From one end of the states to the other it is surely understood that a true and great spirit has lifted up the French people in its effort to resist an unjustified invasion of our territory. It is known that our cause is the cause of liberty.

Those who know America well, who have traveled the vast area extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, all know that in the United States actions speak louder than words and that the masses as well as the most intellectual circles are not likely to be deceived by specious arguments. The aim and character of the German military party revealed themselves fully when the present war broke out: first of power, justification of the means employed by the object to be attained, disregard of individual rights, contempt of treaties, violation of the laws and usages of war. And following on comes the enumeration of actual results; belligerency imposed upon those whose neutrality had been guaranteed, the bombardment of undefended coasts and unarmed cities, the murdering of women and children and non-combatants, the devastation of fertile countries and prosperous industries, the wanton destruction of monuments of history and treasures of art. It will take years to wipe out the stain. When we look back upon the many events which, in rapid succession, have taken place during the last eight months we feel as though we were carried back centuries into the past, and as if the customs established by law-abiding communities had been wiped out of existence.

We, brought up as we have been to revere the memory of men such as Abraham Lincoln, who, while a great war was being waged under his administration could still proclaim, that his policy was actuated "with malice towards none and with charity for all," we marvel to witness, in our modern times, a backward movement of the world towards a primitive conception of warfare. Fortunately our faith in civilization remains unshaken; and when we think of America, this great, young and beautiful nation, the child of liberty, we know, we feel that there it is unnecessary to plead a cause of justice. We cannot imagine Americans approving the savage invasion of the Belgian provinces by those who had promised to respect and protect their neutrality; we feel sure that the devastation of our rich and industrious provinces in the north and east, the bombardment of cathedrals, churches, town halls and other monuments of art and beauty, the ill treatment of non-combatants and of a defenseless population, arouse general reprobation.

With you the whole philosophy of government rests on principles of justice, the sovereignty of law, the respect and protection of inalienable rights against arbitrary rule or legislation. This conception of organized power has received the solemn adhesion of all your leading men, as well as the consecration of time. For these reasons we have full confidence that the sympathy of all true Americans will never cease to be with our just cause.

BRYAN INSISTS ON ONE TERM PLANK

Opponents Say This Is Why "He Left State Department.

ACTIONS CLOSELY WATCHED

Expected to Make Statement, Praising the President and Leaving Impression That the One Term Idea is a Sacred Principle of the Party—Political Aspirations Still Live.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 29.—[Special.]—In their efforts to ascertain the real cause of Bryan's resignation from the cabinet the inquirers have at last come upon the one term plank in the Democratic platform.

It is said that because President Wilson refused to abide by that plank, or evinced a determination to ignore it and become a candidate for president next year Bryan felt he could no longer remain in the cabinet and be compelled to support the repudiation of a platform declaration which he was careful to have included in the principles of the party.

Bryan could not very well break with Wilson on that question without incurring the criticism of being personally concerned and wanting the place for himself. But leaving the cabinet on the German question, he can criticize other acts of the administration, including the failure to live up to the one term plank.

What He May Do.

Those who know Bryan believe that ere long, and as if quite accidentally he will make the statement that no one has ever had any thought of disregarding the one term plank of the Baltimore platform. He will make the assertion in quite an impersonal way, coupled with praises of President Wilson, but leaving the impression with the whole country that the one term plank is a sacred principle of the party. Bryan can make quite a strenuous stand for the preservation of party platforms. He has done so before and may do so again.

Bryan Has Ambitions.

"Bryan wants to be president, or he would like to be in the senate," remarked a man who knows him fairly well, "and that is one reason why he broke with Wilson. He may decide to be a candidate for president. He has not found Wilson willing to stand by the one term plank in the Baltimore platform, and he found Wilson utterly opposed to a war on Senator Hitchcock in Nebraska, a war which Bryan must make if he enters the senate, unless he decides to make the race in Texas, Florida or North Carolina. He has homes in all these states and could claim a residence in any of them."

Grandfather Clause.

The elimination of the "grandfather clause" is not going to give the negroes control in the south. It may give a few negroes a better opportunity to vote in border states, but in the south it will not make much difference. The adoption of the Virginia poll tax law will keep most of the negroes who can read and pass a literacy test from voting, or the method in Texas, which is effective, may be adopted. There they tell the negroes that it is not healthy for them to vote or mix in politics. Many years ago the southern states determined that they would not be dominated by negroes. The "grandfather clause" was simply an expedient by which the poor and ignorant whites might vote, but others can be found.

More Points of Order.

In compiling the parliamentary procedure of the last congress it has been found that more points of order were made during the two years than in all of thirty years previous to that time. "That shows that new men were in charge and running the senate," remarked an ex-senator. It was also due to the fact that efforts were continually made to do away with the long winded talker as a filibuster. There has been rapid strides made toward choking off filibustering, which accounts for the many points of order.

Reviving the "Cooked Hat."

They are reviving the story about the letter which Woodrow Wilson wrote to John in which he expressed the wish that something would happen to "knock Bryan into a cooked hat." There are some Democrats who feel the same way about it now. Most of the Democratic leaders of the present time are not Bryan men. Many were Bryan men, but they are holding office by Woodrow Wilson's appointment. Others are aware that the only hope of Democratic success is the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for a second term. They believe Bryan is going to oppose that course, hence they are not for Bryan as against Wilson at this time.

Rubbing It Into Congress.

Every little while there emanates from the postoffice department a communication or statement showing that the officials are still sore because the appropriation bill did not pass. This or that shortcoming is attributed to the failure of congress to pass the bill.

Rural Credits.

From time to time there is a desultory discussion about rural credits. It will be a long time before a rural credit bill can pass. It will be difficult to harmonize the differences which exist about a rural credit system.

Lady Baltimore Cake

The Most Popular Cake This Season

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

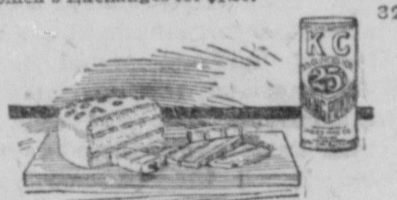

This is considered by many cooking authorities the finest cake that can be made, though in reality it is not at all difficult.

K C Lady Baltimore Cake

One cup butter; 2 cups granulated sugar; 1 cup milk; 1 teaspoonful rose water; 3½ cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; whites of 6 eggs, beaten dry.

Cream the butter and beat in the sugar gradually. Sift together, three times, the flour and baking powder, and add to the butter and sugar, alternately with the milk and rose water. Lastly, add the egg whites. Bake in three-layer cake pans. Put the layers together with the following frosting.

Note—The cake is a large one and sells at Women's Exchanges for $1.50.

Frosting for Lady Baltimore Cake

Three cups granulated sugar; 1 cup boiling water; whites of 3 eggs; 1 cup chopped raisins; 1 cup chopped nut-meats; 3 eggs and in this order.

Stir the sugar and water until the sugar is dissolved, then let boil without stirring until the syrup from a spoon will spin a long thread; pour upon the whites of the eggs, beaten dry, beating constantly meanwhile. Continue the beating until the frosting is cold; add the fruit and spread upon the cake.

The result of the election on the proposition of county option was somewhat of a surprise to a great number of people who taking their cue from the local option election in April, at which time the city voted out the saloons by a majority of 177, supposed that the same conditions would control in the county option vote as far as the city was concerned. The unexpected happened, however, and the city voted wet at the election yesterday by a majority of 188, and the reversal of opinion in this matter is attributed to several causes, one of which was the mixing of the county option matter with the bond issue and the raise in the tax levy and voting on all three propositions at one time, and another prominent factor was the stand taken by certain organizations. Political trades at the time the local option vote was taken, and which did not hold good at the county option election, are also held to have made considerable difference in the vote. If Brainerd had not reversed herself on the stand taken county option would have carried. However, the matter is settled for two years during which time the county will be wet and Brainerd will be dry, reports current on the streets that a vote to reverse the local option will be held at once, to the contrary, notwithstanding. No vote on that proposition can be taken until the time fixed by the statutes expires, and the result of the election yesterday has no bearing on the case.

The defeat of the proposed amendment to the charter providing for the issuance of bonds with which to continue street work means that nothing of that nature can be done, there is no remedy until funds are provided in a legal way and the vote of the people seems to be that that way will not be provided. The defeat of the increase in the tax levy to meet expenses in running the city will result in a reduction of the police force, curtailment in street lighting and strict retrenchment in all lines. With no saloon licenses the funds are curtailed and the city has no income with which to meet the pay rolls without an increase in taxation.

FISHING INDUSTRY INJURED

Washington, June 29, (Special correspondence)—Workmen in all lines of industry have learned by sad experience within the past two years that in a country of diversified resources, such as this, no enterprise will thrive by itself alone. The laborer in one line of industry depends for his market upon the prosperity of the workmen of other industries. Laborers employed in a factory for example, must find buyers for their output, and in order that those buyers shall buy freely and at remunerative prices, it is necessary that they in turn shall have a market for what they produce and at a compensation that affords them a profit.

Although fishing is an industry of chief interest along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and receives little attention from residents of other sections, it nevertheless furnishes a means of livelihood for a very large number of people, who, in turn, are patrons of other industries. How American fishermen may be adversely affected is illustrated by a report of the U. C. Commissioner of Fisheries showing that last November a Norwegian steamer landed 1,500,000 pounds of Iceland codfish in Gloucester, Mass. Had this cargo been entered under republican tariff law it would have paid $11,250 of revenue to the government. The Underwood tariff law struck out the three-quarters of a cent duty on fresh fish, and this shipment came in free. Imagine the effect on the fish market in Gloucester the day that cargo of fish was entered and sold in competition with the catch of American fishermen.

Mr. Fred Davis, engaged in catching and packing fish in Gloucester, testifying before the Ways and Means committee in a vain attempt to have the duty on fresh fish retained, said that the fishing business on the Atlantic coast is conducted on a share basis. "The fisherman is a sharer in the gain or loss of the trip which he makes," said Mr. Davis. "Therefore, if the price of his fish is to be reduced, he suffers. If he comes into the market with his fresh fish and that price is down 2 cents, or that price is up 5 cents, he shares three-quarters of the difference between the 2 cents and the 5 cents. The vessel would take one-quarter, or one-fifth of it, on whatever lay she is on. He has got to pay for the expenses of that trip. If that trip comes in in debt, when the fish goes down to a low price, that fisherman will come in in debt; and he will have nothing for the trip, and will have to wait a month, perhaps without one cent. He has no money to take home to his family."

Let one imagine himself to be a fisherman returning from a long "lay," after having undergone the perils of the sea and the rigors of November weather on the Banks. The vessel is well loaded with cod, and he has expectations of a fair price and a few blissful days with his family. He swings into port to find that a cargo of fish from Iceland is just unloading and the price gone to Davy Jones' locker. Instead of a profit, he is mulcted for his share of three-quarters the loss of the trip. Nothing left for his family. Will his heart glow with gratitude for the free-trade democracy? Not much. The Gloucester fisherman is reputed to have a large command of strong language, but a sturgeon may safely be wagered against a sardine that he did not have enough to satisfactorily express himself on the day that Icelandic cargo hove into port.

In 1914 the free imports of fresh fish amounted to 55,000,000 pounds. It will be astonishing to some people to learn that some of the imports are of fish caught by Japanese in the Pacific ocean and sold in the markets at Gloucester, Mass. The Japanese fisherman is satisfied with a wage upon which the American fisherman cannot live.

The farmer and manufacturer and minor may not feel much interest in the fishing industry but the American fisherman is one of the buyers of their products and the extent of his prosperity measures his buying capacity.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 29—Henry Soth narrowly escaped death from asphyxiation from his automobile. He went into his garage alone and after starting the big engine in his car closed the garage door. The engine consumed the oxygen in the small space and the escaping exhaust rendered him unconscious. An employee rescued him.

Winnipeg, Man., June 29—"The time will soon come when every physically fit Canadian will have to join in the fight for the existence of the British empire and the continuance of civilization," said Hon. Arthur Meighen of Portage La Prairie, in an address today. He appealed to Canadians to respond to the latest call for 35,000 Canadians.

St. Paul, Minn., June 29—Following the lead of the state of Wisconsin, the state of Minnesota today announced that aviators will be employed in the patrol of Northern Minnesota forests.

Bemidji, Minn., June 29—Louis Sporehase a farmer who resided two miles north of Puposky is dead here today without knowing of the death of his wife which occurred April 17. Mrs. Sporehase was the victim of Bright's disease and was taken to the hospital on April 16. She died the following day. Mr. Sporehase was taken to the hospital on April 14, following a stroke of paralysis. His condition was so serious that it was not considered advisable by his physicians to tell him of his wife's death. He never rallied.

Bemidji, Minn., June 29—Ten-strike, 18 miles north of Bemidji, is to have a canning factory. It is being opened by S. C. Maule and will be known as S. G. Maule & Company. It will have a capacity of 1,000 cans daily and will be in operation within the next 30 days it was announced today.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 29—Despite abundant rain in this section crops excepting corn, are flourishing. The average stand of corn is about three inches, but it has a firm root. Growers have undoubtedly suffered the greatest in their strawberry crop. The excessive rain during the ripening period prevented picking of the berries before moulding. H. F. Hanson, one of the largest growers of strawberries in southern Minnesota, stated today that his pickers have been able to go into the fields only a part of three days and he will lose about a third of the ripened crop. Never before have prospects for a bumper apple crop been so promising. Raspberries, currants, gooseberries and cherries give promise for a full crop.

WHAT WAR MOVES MEAN

An indication of the immense additions which have been made to the British navy since the outbreak of the war is contained in supplementary naval estimates to be introduced in parliament this week providing for 50,000 additional men. This number represents an increase of one-third over the navy's personnel as it was when hostilities began.

One year ago, the 150,000 men in the British navy included large numbers occupying shore posts at the admiralty offices and at the various dockyard and naval stations. The additions made since then are practically entirely for service at sea, and it is to provide for these that supplementary estimates are to be sanctioned by law. How many new warships have been completed by Great Britain since last August is a closely guarded secret. But the number is unquestionably very large. It requires from 750 to 900 men to operate the newest types of super-dreadnought and, even though all the 50,000 new sailors now to be provided for may not be needed immediately, a small part of them would serve to equip a large fleet of the major fighting craft.

England was building 10 superdreadnoughts of her own when the war broke out, as well as two for Turkey. These later were taken over by the government and Turkey was compensated for them. Four other capital ships had also been voted by parliament, so that a total of 16 superdreadnoughts were under way on the declaration of war. This number is three more than was the strength of the entire German dreadnought battleship fleet at the commencement of hostilities.

It is quite within the bounds of possibility that all these 16 first line ships have been made ready for battle during the last 11 months. The original dreadnought was laid down in December, 1905, and was completed in October, 1906. The admiralty issued orders that a test for construction under wartime conditions was to be made with the first dreadnought, and the vessel was ready for the fighting line 10 months after the keel was laid.

Besides concentrating on new fleets of superdreadnoughts, the admiralty has been hurrying work on light cruisers to replace those destroyed by the Germans. New torpedo boat destroyers, too, are being hurriedly built, for their presence in additional numbers has been made imperative by the German submarine warfare.

It is being privately whispered in England that, since last August, the British admiralty has built a supplementary fleet as powerful as the entire American navy.

TELLS FRANCE'S SIDE

By William Phil Simms
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Paris, May 30 (By mail to New York)—Deputy Marquis de Chambrun, member of the committee on foreign affairs and great grandson of General LaFayette whose name figures in American history by the side of that of George Washington, has been repeatedly asked by American sympathizers with the Allies' cause, this question:—

"The Germans are using means to spread their propaganda in the United States. They are sending writers, lecturers, diplomatic representatives and others to tell their side of the story. Why don't you, who speak and write English perfectly and whose name will count for a great deal in our country, cross the Atlantic and tell France's side?"

The Marquis, whose wife is an American woman, her maiden name being Miss Margaret Rives Nichols, step-daughter of Bellamy Storer, of Cincinnati, has always modestly repelled France has no need to adopt such methods. Invited by the United Press to write his ideas on this subject, he consented. Here is his article:

One of the characteristics of the present war is the propaganda made by belligerent nations in neutral countries, through publicity and by various means, in view of enlisting sympathy and gaining moral support. Why then have we refrained from sending propagandists to America for the purpose of influencing public opinion in favor of the Allies? The answer is simple. We rely on the justice of our cause. We have full confidence in the clear sightedness of the American people.

It is indeed difficult for us to separate the United States from the cause of liberty. When France first learned of the struggle for American independence, "her heart was enlisted" and our government was soon obliged to follow the popular feeling aroused by the departure of LaFayette who had spontaneously gone over to fight for the American colonies in open rebellion. Thus the just cause of your independence had awakened in France an irresistible national feeling. In the mind of thinking men the great prestige of the United States abroad still rests on the freedom of her institutions, on the recognized worth of her constitution, even more than on her great material prosperity. We feel sure that it is superfluous, as far as the free citizens of such a republic are concerned, to resort to the petty means of propaganda in the present crisis. From one end of the states to the other it is surely understood that a true and great spirit has lifted up the French people in its effort to resist an unjustified invasion of our territory. It is known that our cause is the cause of liberty.

Those who know America well, who have traveled the vast area extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, all know that in the United States actions speak louder than words and that the masses as well as the most intellectual circles are not likely to be deceived by specious arguments. The aim and character of the German military party revealed themselves fully when the present war broke out: first of power, justification of the means employed by the object to be attained, disregard of individual rights, contempt of treaties, violation of the laws and usages of war. And following on comes the enumeration of actual results; belligerency imposed upon those whose neutrality had been guaranteed, the bombardment of undefended coasts and unarmed cities, the murdering of women and children and non-combatants, the devastation of fertile countries and prosperous industries, the wanton destruction of monuments of history and treasures of art. It will take years to wipe out the stain. When we look back upon the many events which, in rapid succession, have taken place during the last eight months we feel as though we were carried back centuries into the past, and as if the customs established by law-abiding communities had been wiped out of existence.

We, brought up as we have been to revere the memory of men such as Abraham Lincoln, who, while a great war was being waged under his administration could still proclaim, that his policy was actuated "with malice towards none and with charity for all," we marvel to witness, in our modern times, a backward movement of the world towards a primitive conception of warfare. Fortunately our faith in civilization remains unshaken; and when we think of America, this great, young and beautiful nation, the child of liberty, we know, we feel that there it is unnecessary to plead a cause of justice. We cannot imagine Americans approving the savage invasion of the Belgian provinces by those who had promised to respect and protect their neutrality; we feel sure that the devastation of our rich and industrious provinces in the north and east, the bombardment of cathedrals, churches, town halls and other monuments of art and beauty, the ill treatment of non-combatants and of a defenseless population, arouse general reprobation.

With you the whole philosophy of government rests on principles of justice, the sovereignty of law, the respect and protection of inalienable rights against arbitrary rule or legislation. This conception of organized power has received the solemn adhesion of all your leading men, as well as the consecration of time. For these reasons we have full confidence that the sympathy of all true Americans will never cease to be with our just cause.

BRYAN INSISTS ON ONE TERM PLANK

Opponents Say This Is Why He Left State Department.

ACTIONS CLOSELY WATCHED

Expected to Make Statement, Praising the President and Leaving Impression That the One Term Idea is a Sacred Principle of the Party—Political Aspirations Still Live.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 29.—[Special.]—In their efforts to ascertain the real cause of Bryan's resignation from the cabinet the inquirers have at last come upon the one term plank in the Democratic platform.

It is said that because President Wilson refused to abide by that plank, or evinced a determination to ignore it and become a candidate for president next year Bryan felt he could no longer remain in the cabinet and be compelled to support the repudiation of a platform declaration which he was careful to have included in the principles of the party.

Bryan could not very well break with Wilson on that question without incurring the criticism of being personally concerned and wanting the place for himself. But leaving the cabinet on the German question, he can criticize other acts of the administration, including the failure to live up to the one term plank.

What He May Do.

Those who know Bryan believe that ere long, and as if quite accidentally he will make the statement that no one has ever had any thought of disregarding the one term plank of the Baltimore platform. He will make the assertion in quite an impersonal way, coupled with praises of President Wilson, but leaving the impression with the whole country that the one term plank is a sacred principle of the party. Bryan can make quite a strenuous stand for the preservation of party platforms. He has done so before and may do so again.

Bryan Has Ambitions.

"Bryan wants to be president, or he would like to be in the senate," remarked a man who knows him fairly well, "and that is one reason why he broke with Wilson. He may decide to be a candidate for president. He has not found Wilson willing to stand by the one term plank in the Baltimore platform, and he found Wilson utterly opposed to a war on Senator Hitchcock in Nebraska, a war which Bryan must make if he enters the senate, unless he decides to make the race in Texas, Florida or North Carolina. He has homes in all these states and could claim a residence in any of them."

Grandfather Clause.

The elimination of the "grandfather clause" is not going to give the negroes control in the south. It may give a few negroes a better opportunity to vote in border states, but in the south it will not make much difference. The adoption of the Virginia poll tax law will keep most of the negroes who can read and pass a literacy test from voting, or the method in Texas, which is effective, may be adopted. There they tell the negroes that it is not healthy for them to vote or mix in politics. Many years ago the southern states determined that they would not be dominated by negroes. The "grandfather clause" was simply an expedient by which the poor and ignorant whites might vote, but others can be found.

More Points of Order.

In compiling the parliamentary procedure of the last congress it has been found that more points of order were made during the two years than in all of thirty years previous to that time. "That shows that new men were in charge and running the senate," remarked an ex-senator. "It was also due to the fact that efforts were continually made to do away with the long winded talker as a filibuster. There has been rapid strides made toward choking off filibustering, which accounts for the many points of order."

Reviving the "Cocked Hat."

They are reviving the story about the letter which Woodrow Wilson wrote to Maine in which he expressed the wish that something would happen to "knock Bryan into a cocked hat." There are some Democrats who feel the same way about it now. Most of the Democratic leaders of the present time are not Bryan men. Many were Bryan men, but they are holding office by Woodrow Wilson's appointment. Others are aware that the only hope of Democratic success is the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for a second term. They believe Bryan is going to oppose that course, hence they are not for Bryan as against Wilson at this time.

Rubbing It Into Congress.

Every little while there emanates from the postoffice department a communication or statement showing that the officials are still sore because the appropriation bill did not pass. This or that shortcoming is attributed to the failure of congress to pass the bill.

Rural Credits.

From time to time there is a desultory discussion about rural credits. It will be a long time before a rural credits bill can pass. It will be difficult to harmonize the differences which exist about a rural credit system.

COUNTY VOTES WET CITY REVERSES VOTE

While the Entire Vote of the County is Not in, Enough Precincts Have Been Heard From

TO INDICATE THE RESULT

Brainerd Voted Out the Saloons on April 6th on Local Option, Votes Wet by 188

Brainerd and Crow Wing county had an election yesterday.

The proposition of voting an increase in the tax levy to meet expenses caused by a falling off of the city revenue in saloon licenses went down to defeat as did also the adoption of the proposed amendment to the city charter authorizing a bond issue to provide funds with which to continue street improvements.

County option, the main issue and to which was tacked the bond issue and the increase in the tax rate, met its Waterloo and Crow Wing county stands out as one of the few wet counties in the state.

County option has failed to carry in Crow Wing county and the bond gained by the "wets" in Brainerd has been maintained on the Cuyuna iron range and throughout the county and it is believed the total "wet" majority will be close to 200.

The city of Brainerd voted 698 for county option and 886 against it. Brainerd went dry under local option by 177, the vote at that time being 986 dry and 809 wet. Voting Tuesday the city reversed itself.

The $15,000 street construction bonds failed to carry and the increase in tax rate was also voted down.

Large "dry" votes were polled in Crosby 203 to 107, Deerwood township 74 to 24, Long Lake 69 to 47, Pequot 55 to 25, Bay Lake 45 to 13. At 3 o'clock this afternoon 31 out of 47 precincts gave 1818 wet and 1676 dry.

WATER AND LIGHT BOARD

Has a Meeting Monday Evening. Routine Bills Allowed, Spring Bay Water Discussed

The water and light board met Monday evening, all members being present. Hugo Schwartzkopf wished a water rate for his butcher shop, and the secretary was instructed to write him that if the flat rate was not satisfactory, that a water meter may be installed.

On motion of Commissioners Weidemann and Rowley a water meter is to be installed at 323 South Sixth street. G. W. Hall appeared before the board and wanted a rebate for a water service line which he put in at his own expense at his property. None was allowed because no other consumers were given rebates in 1911. Routine bills and payrolls were allowed in the water and light departments.

The Minnesota Telephone Co. was on motion ordered stopped from using electric light poles of the city in alleys through blocks 41, 43 and 45 in the business district.

The water ordinance and the Spring Bay water situation were discussed by the board.

MIKE GIBBONS LIKES BRAINERD

Champion Lightweight in City on Way to Crook Lake to Buy a Summer Home

WILL GO ON FISHING TRIP

Accompanied by Friend T. F. O'Rourke—Gibbons is His Own Manager

Quietly today Brainerd was entertaining a big champion, Mike Gibbons, lightweight of St. Paul, who sized up Brainerd and was on his way to Crook lake where he will invest some of the wads of money he has made in a summer home and will also use it as a training camp.

Gibbons met many friends in Brainerd and it was a regular hand shaking tour from the depot to the hotel and back. He was accompanied by his friend, T. F. O'Rourke.

Gibbons has just cleaned up Leo Houk in New York and Soldier Bartfield in Brooklyn. He is hungry for more. Gibbons is the picture of health, with bronzed complexion and his muscles bulging out from under the brown flannel shirt. He dresses plainly. A diamond ring as big as a hazel nut gives some indication of the opulence of the fighter and his success in the fighting ring.

It's a pleasure to talk to Mr. Gibbons and get a story from him, for he hits the point directly. He is his own manager and unlike many fighters is successful as a business man too.

His brother Tom is training for a fight with Billy Mike. Tom is a good sparring partner for Mike whenever occasion arises. Mr. Gibbons, like many of the noted men in the field of sports, is about to belong to one of the greatest fraternities on earth, having his application card in the Elks lodge at St. Paul and will be initiated Thursday. Some of the local lodge were wondering what the degree team would do here if Mike joined Brainerd lodge.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

Cleveland, Ohio, June 29.—Brookside Park Zoo here has the very latest animal freak—a horned rooster. Zoo keeper Muldoon believes Dick is the only "deer-rooster" in the world. Dick's antlers are about two inches long. Curving gracefully outward and upward they end in notched points where they are just beginning to fork like the horns of an elk. Students of American fauna are stumped. They can't explain the phenomenon. And the oddest part of the freak is that the bird is kept in a deer park. "Maybe Dick's environment brought the horns," says Muldoon. "But he has 'em all right."

Everybody Inclined to Save and Dress Well Should Read it

A safe and sane Fourth is indeed on the way—Independence Day this year finds the United States the only nation among the world powers which is at peace. Adherence to the admonition of our forefathers to avoid entangling alliances and a fortunate absence from jealous neighbors has saved us the pains and the horrors of war—Let us continue to attend strictly to our own affairs and not carry any chips on our shoulder. Everybody wants to look well and yet keep comfortable while enjoying the great anniversary of Independence—For the women and children we can refer you to the busy June sacrifice of L. M. Koop's as being a place to buy your hot weather needs in apparel—shoes and millinery—and we know your reading of the L. M. A THOUSAND CHILDREN ENJOY HEALTH OUTING

Oakland, Cal., June 29—With the idea of giving 1900 children a country home where they can come into their own—health and happiness—Mrs. Emma J. Mellette, philanthropist, of Oakland, is preparing to purchase an immense ranch in this county where she will act as the mother to the small brood of a thousand.

"I'm going to teach them self-reliance and self-support," said Mrs. Mellette today. "They will acquire a vast amount of knowledge of human nature by mingling together. I shall show them that work and play go hand in hand but that one is as important as the other."

Children's wash dresses and wash suits at a very small cost is our offering to busy mothers. Wash dresses at 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00 with a very large line at 50c. Boy's wash suits 2 to 6 years in a wide selection at 50c to $1.25 with many at about 75c. Then we show a large selection of rompers at 25c and 50c. Let us show you.

FOURTH OF JULY BASEBALL SERIES

July 3-4 and 5 South St. Paul Knispels Play Brainerd Here

GOOD ATTENDANCE REQUIRED

Next Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3d, 4th and 5th Brainerd's baseball team will play a series of games with one of the fastest semi-professional baseball teams in the state. The South St. Paul Flor de Knispels baseball team has been procured for this series at a rather heavy expense in the hope that Brainerd fans will turn out in large numbers to help the local boys win which would mean that Brainerd could lay claim to having the fastest team in the state today.

The article of ball played thus far in the season has led the management to believe that Brainerd will rank with the best in the state and this series will conclusively demonstrate its ability to uphold this reputation. The pitching staff of the Knispels includes "Lefty" Heinke, and "Smiles" Dixon who are considered premier artists. "Lefty" Heinke has pitched three shut-out games for his team this season and has lost but one game—that being against Mankato who he held to six scattered hits losing by a score of 2 to 1. "Smiles" Dixon registered a win from the fast Austin, Minn., team while the team as a whole has a clean run of wins in the Inter-City League of semi-professional teams which includes the best in the Twin Cities.

The attendance at the Saturday games has been far below expectations but owing to the many demands for week-day games on the part of those who are against Sunday ball, the management has continued the Saturday games though each time faring a deficit. The statement is now made that the game to be played on Saturday, July 3d, will be the last week day game of the season unless the attendance is much greater than in the past. With the team playing better ball and the arrangements carried out more systematically, yet the attendance for the season has been far below the average of last season. Should the attendance at the three games to be played not be materially enlarged it will demonstrate conclusively that Brainerd fans are losing interest in the game which will result in but one game a week being played.

A picture and line-up of the Knispels team will be printed in the Friday issue of the Dispatch while a large amount of printed matter in the way of announcements, etc., will be distributed over the entire city and county in the hopes that the attendance will warrant a continuation of Saturday games.

RULES FOR SPRINKLING

Sprinkling is permitted only between the hours of 6 to 9 A. M. and 6 to 9 P. M.

Permits for sprinkling must be procured in advance.

Nozzles must be used at all times when water is used for sprinkling purposes.

SPRINKLING MUST BE DISCONTINUED DURING FIRES.

Where violations of these rules are discovered, the service will be discontinued, and a charge of $1.00 made for again turning on service.

SPRINKLING RATES

Rates for one hose:—
For 25 ft. frontage, season...$3.00
For 50 ft. frontage, season... 5.00
Over 50 ft. frontage, season 6.00

GULL LAKE ROAD

Chairman Patek of Good Roads Committee Inspects Road With Commissioners

Chairman Harry Patek of the Good Roads committee of the Chamber of Commerce together with Commissioner Erickson and Crust and Secretary Hansing inspected the Gull lake road last evening by auto driving as far as Gull lake. Several stretches of the road which is now being repaired were carefully inspected after which they returned to the city over the Gull lake narrows road. Owing to the heavy rains of late repairs to the roads have been difficult though the commissioners are using every effort to make the roads passable as far as the money available will allow. The good roads committee are also co-operating with the commissioners and it is hoped that considerable progress can be made during the summer in repairing and constructing county roads.

PICKETS WIN

Oak Lawn Defeated 7 to 6, on Fourth Tigers and Oak Lawn Will Play

Oak Lawn went down to a 7 to 6 defeat last Sunday before the onslaught of the Pickets of N. E. Brainerd in an exciting 10-inning contest. The batteries were, for Oak Lawn, Nelson and Cowles; for the Pickets Ebinger and Kirsch. With ordinary support both pitchers would have pitched shut-out ball.

The bright individual star of the game was Ed. Nelson, Oak Lawn's pitcher. He made five hits in six trips to the plate, stole four bases, scored twice, and struck out 20 batters.

On the Fourth the Tigers of S. E. Brainerd and Oak Lawn clash for the second time on the Oak Lawn ground. The first game was an 11-inning victory for the Tigers.

PROHIBITION TOWNS

COUNTY VOTES WET CITY REVERSES VOTE

While the Entire Vote of the County is Not in, Enough Precincts Have Been Heard From

TO INDICATE THE RESULT

Brainerd Voted Out the Saloons on April 6th on Local Option, Votes Wet by 188

Brainerd and Crow Wing county had an election yesterday.

The proposition of voting an increase in the tax levy to meet expenses caused by a falling off of the city revenue in saloon licenses went down to defeat as did also the adoption of the proposed amendment to the city charter authorizing a bond issue to provide funds with which to continue street improvements.

County option, the main issue and to which was tacked the bond issue and the increase in the tax rate, met its Waterloo and Crow Wing county stands out as one of the few wet counties in the state.

County option has failed to carry in Crow Wing county and the loss gained by the "wets" in Brainerd has been maintained on the Cuyuna iron range and throughout the county and it is believed the total "wet" majority will be close to 200.

The city of Brainerd voted 698 for county option and 886 against it. Brainerd went dry under local option by 177, the vote at that time being 986 dry and 809 wet. Voting Tuesday the city reversed itself.

The $15,000 street construction bonds failed to carry and the increase in tax rate was also voted down.

Large "dry" votes were polled in Crosby 203 to 107, Deerwood township 74 to 24, Long Lake 65 to 47, Pequot 55 to 25, Bay Lake 45 to 13. At 3 o'clock this afternoon 31 out of 47 precincts gave 1818 wet and 1676 dry.

The vote by precincts as far as heard from is as follows:

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice Macdonald, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an anthropoid ape skeleton and a living inhuman creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his rooms have appeared from nowhere black boxes containing sarcastic notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig is trapped by Quest, but escapes to England, where Quest, Lenora and the professor follow him. Lord Ashleigh is murdered by the Hands. Lenora is abducted in London and rescued. Craig is captured and escapes to Port Said, where Quest and his party also go and beyond into the desert.

IN THE DESERT.

Quest was the first the next morning to open his eyes, to grope his way through the tent opening and stand for a moment alone, watching the alabaster skies. He turned lazily around, meaning to summon the Arab who had volunteered to take Hassan's place. His arms—he had been in the act of stretching—fell to his sides. He stared at the spot where the camels had been tethered, incredulously. There were no camels, no drivers, no Arabs. There was not a soul nor an object in sight except the stark body of Hassan, which they had dragged half out of sight behind a slight knoll. High up in the sky above were two little black specks, wheeling lower and lower. Quest shivered as he suddenly realized that for the first time in his life he was looking upon the winged ghouls of the desert. Lower and lower they came. He turned away with a shiver.

The professor was still sleeping when Quest re-entered the tent. He woke him up and beckoned him to come outside.

Quest pointed to the little sandy knoll with its sparse covering of grass, deserted—with scarcely a sign, even, that it had been the resting place of the little caravan. The professor gave vent to a little exclamation.

The professor hurried off towards the spot where the encampment had been made. Suddenly he stood still and pointed with his finger. In the clearer, almost crystalline light of the coming day, they saw the track of the camels in one long, unbroken line stretching away northwards.

He glanced around a little helplessly. Quest took a cigar from his case and lit it.

"No good worrying," Quest sighed. "The question is how best to get out of the mess. What's the next move, anyway?"

The professor glanced towards the son and took a small compass from his pocket. He pointed across the desert.

"That's exactly our route," he said, "but I reckon we still must be two days from the Mongars, and how we are going to get there ourselves, much more get the women there, without camels, I don't know. There are no wells, and I don't believe those fellows have left us a single tin of water."

Laura put her head out of the tent in which the two women had slept.

"Say, where's breakfast?" she exclaimed. "I can't smell the coffee."

They turned and approached her silently. The two girls, fully dressed, came out of the tent as they approached.

"Young ladies," the professor announced, "I regret to say that a misfortune has befallen us, a misfortune which we shall be able, without doubt, to surmount, but which will mean a day of hardship and much inconvenience."

"Where are the camels?" Lenora asked breathlessly.

"Gone!" Quest replied.

"And the Arabs?"

"Gone with them—we are left high and dry," Quest explained.

"And what is worse," the professor added, with a groan, "they have taken with them all our stores, our rifles and our water."

"How far are we from the Mongar camp?" Lenora asked.

"About a day's tramp," Quest replied quickly. "We may reach there by nightfall."

"Then let's start walking at once, before it gets any hotter," Lenora suggested.

Quest patted her on the back. They made a close search of the tents, but found that the Arabs had taken everything in the way of food and drink, except a single half-filled tin of drinking water.

They started bravely enough, but by midday their little stock of water was gone, their feet were sorely blistered. No one complained, however, and the professor did his best to revive their spirits.

"We have come farther than I had dared to hope, in the time," he announced. "Fortunately, I know the exact direction we must take. Keep up your spirits, young ladies. At any time we may see signs of our destination."

They struggled on once more. Night came and brought with it a half-soothing, half-torturing coolness. That vain straining of the eyes upon the horizon at any rate was spared to them. They slept in a fashion, but soon after dawn they were on their feet again. Suddenly Quest, who had gone a little out of his way to mount a low range of sand hills, waved his arm furiously. He was holding his field-glasses to his eyes. It was wonderful how that ray of hope transformed them. They hurried to where he was. He passed the glasses to the professor.

"A caravan!" he exclaimed. "I can see the camels, and horses!"

RUSSIAN RETREAT AN ORDERLY ONE

May Yet Offer Strong Resistance to Their Foes.

London, June 29.—With the Russian emperor on the Galician front, a new minister of war, General Polivanoff, in charge of Russian military affairs, and the grand duke's lines still intact, there is a general expectation that the Russian forces will yet give strong resistance to the Austro-Germans, whose sweep along the south-eastern part of Galicia still continues. The latest advices virtually agree that the Russian retreat has been an orderly one, although obliged to evacuate such important towns as Lemberg, Mikolajow and Halicz, but this, it is intimated by Petrograd, has been for the purpose of seeking better defensive positions which the nature of the country further to the east affords.

So far as can be learned the Teutonic allies are not transferring any of their eastern forces to the western zone, but are devoting all their men and strength to the Galician campaign and to a further attempt to strike at Warsaw, the Polish capital.

The latest Russian official communication indicates that a serious battle is being fought on the left bank of the Vistula, in Poland, where in attacks in the Oszow district, particularly against the town of Gliniany, the Austrians were repulsed and suffered great loss.

Sons of Teutons Call Off Meeting at Chicago.

Chicago, June 29.—William Jennings Bryan did not address the Sons of Teutons here on the subject of peace, as had been planned.

G. F. Hummel, chairman of the committee on arrangements, called off the meeting after telegraphing Mr. Bryan at New York suggesting that the topic of the address be changed from peace to the exportation of ammunition from this country to Europe.

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss the action of the committee in calling off the meeting further than to say that it was due to a misunderstanding. He referred all questioners to members of the committee.

REV. R. P. HERRICK IS DEAD

Head of Minnesota Congregational Sunday Schools Passes Away.

Minneapolis, June 29.—Rev. Robert Parkinson Herrick, superintendent of the State Congregational Sunday School society and prominent Congregational church leader in Minnesota, died at his home of apoplexy.

Rev. Herrick was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1857. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1880, and from Hartford Theological seminary in 1883.

Rev. Herrick's first charge was at Montevideo, Minn., in 1883. He was one of the founders of Windom college, then known as the Western Minnesota Theological seminary, and was a trustee of the institution until his death. He served as president of the college two terms, 1885-1889 and 1890-1893.

In 1886 Rev. Mr. Herrick became general missionary of the Home Missionary society of the church and in 1888 was appointed state superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School society, a position which he filled to the last.

Child Is Bolt Victim.

Cloquet, Minn., June 29.—Lightning struck the home of August Nelson, four miles north of Cloquet, and instantly killed Lillian Nelson, nine years old, who was playing on the second floor with her sister Jennie, twelve years old. Jennie Nelson was knocked down.

TIE UP WORLD'S SHIPPING

Said Germany Attempted Universal Strike of Seamen.

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—A world-wide strike of all seamen in the interest of her warfare has been attempted by the German empire, said Andrew Feuruth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America.

To bring about this strike Germany has offered to guarantee a pension of $10 per week to each man participating in such a strike so long as the war in Europe shall last, Feuruth says. He charges that such an offer was made to the unions of America and that they have been or will be made in every other neutral nation in the world.

The idea is to tie up shipping throughout the world and thus prevent the allies from securing ammunition and supplies from the United States and other neutral nations, Feuruth says.

Russia Makes Contract With Canadian Company.

New York, June 29.—Wilson W. Butler, vice president of the Canadian Steel Foundries, Limited, and the Canadian Car and Foundry company, who arrived from Liverpool on the steamship Philadelphia, declared that while abroad he closed a contract in Petrograd for 5,000,000 artillery shells, which, he asserted, is one of the largest contracts ever granted by Russia for foreign made ammunition. The shells will be manufactured in Canada.

Alleged Dynamiters' Trial Oct. 4.

Los Angeles, June 29.—Matthew A. Schmidt and David Caplan will be brought to trial Oct. 4 on charges of murder resulting from the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building by dynamite Oct. 1, 1910, according to a ruling made here in the superior court.

Iowa Editor Is Dead.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What increase in power can I expect by using ether in gasoline and in what proportion is it used to gain the best of results?

The use of ether in fuel will give a slight increase in power, due to the more rapid propagation of the flame. One-half pint of ether for each ten gallons of gasoline is used for this purpose, but it is not recommended, as it is not economical. For getting easier starting a mixture of one-half commercial ether and one-half gasoline is carried in an oil can. This can be squirted into each priming cup for the initial explosions. The can must have a cover on the spout.

How will incorrect wiring affect my motor?

The effect of incorrect wiring on the motor depends on how the wires are misplaced. For instance, if the high tension cables were changed around so that no one of them went to the right plug it would be impossible to run the motor, although an occasional explosion might be obtained. If two or three of the high tension wires were interchanged, but one or more were left on the correct plugs, then the motor would run on the cylinders in which the latter were. Where a dual system is employed the wires of the battery system may sometimes be misplaced without interfering with the operation of the magneto and vice versa. As a rule, however, the changing of the wires will result in the whole ignition system becoming inoperative.

Has a long stroke motor any advantages over a short stroke motor?

Yes. The gas after ignition has greater chance to give up its energy to the piston. A greater volume of gas may be gotten into the cylinder without increasing the bore. This means more power for the same piston speed.

How can I take up the end play in a crank shaft without putting in new bearings?

It is best to replace the bearings when end play develops, but if this is not desirable the play can be removed by moving the thrust bearing to one side enough to compensate for the wear. The thrust is taken by the center main bearing, which is easily distinguished by having large flanges on each side. Remove the bolts holding the bearing to the crank case and file out the bolt holes enough to permit the bearing to be shifted. Then replace the bearing and tighten the bolts carefully.

How will running with retarded spark make the water boil in the radiator?

Operating a motor with retarded spark will cause overheating by retarding and prolonging the combustion of the charge throughout the power of expansion stroke. Thus the cylinder walls are exposed to the action of the burning gases during the whole of the stroke instead of only during the time the piston is in the region of upper dead center, as is the case when the spark is properly set. If the spark is advanced to the point of most efficient operation the spark will occur some time before dead center and maximum pressure will be reached and the combustion nearly completed just after dead center has been passed. During this time, since the piston is near the top of the stroke, the amount of surface exposed to the exhaust gases is a minimum, and, furthermore, at this point in the stroke the compression is at its height, and combustion takes place with greatest rapidity. Contrast these conditions with what happens when the spark is greatly retarded. Let us assume that ignition occurs when the piston has half completed its stroke. At this point the compression is lower, and combustion is therefore slower and will probably not be completed until after the exhaust valve opens. The hot gases are in contact with nearly the whole of the cylinder wall surface for practically one-half revolution.

But this is not all. When the spark is retarded, as in the instance just mentioned, the motor does not develop full power, therefore for a given load on the motor the throttle must be opened wider and more gasoline and air must be supplied. The extra heat generated by the combustion of the increased amount of fuel thus adds its share to the already overheated motor.

My car is equipped with electric lights and would like to know if dry batteries would work the head and tail lights. If so, how many and about how many hours would they last?

Dry batteries are not suited for lighting the head and tail lights. This method would be entirely too expensive, as the number of batteries you would require would be great and their life short. Take your storage battery to a battery repair man that you are certain is an expert—if possible take it to a service station maintained by the maker of your battery—and have it examined. It may be that all it needs is an overhauling to make it as good as new. But even if you must buy a new battery it is better to do this than try to use dry cells.

Is it common practice to regrind the cylinders when a motor is worn or is it better to get new pistons and rings?

All depends upon the condition of these parts. Sometimes it is advisable to regrind the cylinders, which is the case when they are worn oval. In this case the fitting of new pistons is a difficult job, and the previous troubles would return again. If the cylinders retain their circularity, then new pistons and rings may be fitted.

Is it a good plan to place graphite in the crank case with the regular oil?

Graphite shows excellent results when used as a lubricant for the motor. Its action is one of a filler, the minute holes in the cylinder being filled in with the graphite, thus reducing friction and wear. Some owners use ordinary flake graphite, while others prefer the defoliated form.

There is a swishing sound issuing from the neighborhood of the right front wheel of my car when it is in motion. It seems to occur once every revolution. What can be causing it?

There are two very likely causes of such a noise. It may be due to the speedometer gears meshing too tightly or the demountable rim has a wedge loose. Jack up the wheel and rotate it slowly, and you can soon determine whether the gears are too close. If this is the case loosen up the arm that carries the driven gear and move the gear only far enough away so that the noise is eliminated. If the trouble is not found in the speedometer gears tighten up the wedges on the rim. One loose wedge will make a noise similar to that you have described, due to the lack of support at this point.

What, in your opinion, is the best way to crank a motor, with the throttle open or nearly closed?

It is preferable to crank the motor with the throttle only opened a small amount, say an inch or an inch and a quarter movement on the quadrant. With some carburetors it is impossible to start the motor with the throttle wide open, while with others it is generally done with difficulty.

Enough Said.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back-ache or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of stinging, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

What Paranoia Is

New York, June 29.—The United Press asked Dr. Austin Flint, world famous alienist to explain just what constitutes paranoia, the disease which the state contends Harry Thaw is suffering from. Here it is:

By DR. AUSTIN FLINT

Paranoia is a chronic progressive psychosis occurring mostly in adult life, characterized by the general development of a stable, progressive system of delusions without marked mental deterioration, clouding of consciousness or disorder of thought, will or conduct.

Recovery I have never seen in the observation of more than a thousand cases.

ANOTHER advantage of living in these days—the Real Tobacco Chew. Satisfaction at last for the man who has wanted the good tobacco taste.

There's a large amount of satisfaction in a mighty small chew. So it's no wonder men are telling friends about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

((Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.))

REV. R. P. HERRICK IS DEAD

Head of Minnesota Congregational Sunday Schools Passes Away.

Minneapolis, June 29.—Rev. Robert Parkinson Herrick, superintendent of the State Congregational Sunday School society and prominent Congregational church leader in Minnesota, died at his home of apoplexy.

Rev. Mr. Herrick was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1857. He was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1880, and from Hartford Theological seminary in 1883.

Rev. Herrick's first charge was at Montevideo, Minn., in 1883. He was one of the founders of Windom college, then known as the Western Minnesota Theological seminary, and was a trustee of the institution until his death. He served as president of the college two terms, 1885-1889 and 1900-1903.

In 1886 Rev. Mr. Herrick became general missionary of the Home Missionary society of the church and in 1888 was appointed state superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School society, a position which he filled to the last.

Child Is Bolt Victim.

Cloquet, Minn., June 29.—Lightning struck the home of August Nelson, four miles north of Cloquet, and instantly killed Lillian Nelson, nine years old, who was playing on the second floor with her sister Jennie, twelve years old. Jennie Nelson was knocked down.

TIE UP WORLD'S SHIPPING

Said Germany Attempted Universal Strike of Seamen.

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—A world-wide strike of all seamen in the interest of her warfare has been attempted by the German empire, said Andrew Feurseth, president of the International Seamen's Union of America.

To bring about this strike Germany has offered to guarantee a pension of $10 per week to each man participating in such a strike so long as the war in Europe shall last, Feurseth says. He charges that such an offer was made to the unions of America and that they have been or will be made in every other neutral nation in the world.

The idea is to tie up shipping throughout the world and thus prevent the allies from securing ammunition and supplies from the United States and other neutral nations, Feurseth says.

Russia Makes Contract With Canadian Company.

New York, June 29.—Wilson W. Butler, vice president of the Canadian Steel Foundries, Limited, and the Canadian Car and Foundry company, who arrived from Liverpool on the steamship Philadelphia, declared that while abroad he closed a contract in Petrograd for 5,000,000 artillery shells, which, he asserted, is one of the largest contracts ever granted by Russia for foreign made ammunition. The shells will be manufactured in Canada.

Alleged Dynamiters' Trial Oct. 4.

Los Angeles, June 29.—Matthew A. Schmidt and David Caplan will be brought to trial Oct. 4 on charges of murder resulting from the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building by dynamite Oct. 1, 1910, according to a ruling made here in the superior court.

Iowa Editor Is Dead.

Burlington, Ia., June 29.—W. H. Davidson, fifty-two years old, for thirty years connected with the editorial staff of the Burlington Hawkeye and for the past fifteen years its managing editor, died at his home here.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What increase in power can I expect by using ether in gasoline and in what proportion is it used to gain the best of results?

The use of ether in fuel will give a slight increase in power, due to the more rapid propagation of the flame. One-half pint of ether for each ten gallons of gasoline is used for this purpose, but it is not recommended, as it is not economical. For getting easier starting a mixture of one-half commercial ether and one-half gasoline is carried in an oil can. This can be squirted into each priming cup for the initial explosions. The can must have a cover on the spout.

How will incorrect wiring affect my motor?

The effect of incorrect wiring on the motor depends on how the wires are misplaced. For instance, if the high tension cables were changed around so that no one of them went to the right plug it would be impossible to run the motor, although an occasional explosion might be obtained. If two or three of the high tension wires were interchanged, but one or more were left on the correct plugs, then the motor would run on the cylinders in which the latter were. Where a dual system is employed the wires of the battery system may sometimes be misplaced without interfering with the operation of the magneto and vice versa. As a rule, however, the changing of the wires will result in the whole ignition system becoming inoperative.

Has a long stroke motor any advantages over a short stroke motor?

Yes. The gas after ignition has greater chance to give up its energy to the piston. A greater volume of gas may be gotten into the cylinder without increasing the bore. This means more power for the same piston speed.

How can I take up the end play in a crank shaft without putting in new bearings?

It is best to replace the bearings when end play develops, but if this is not desirable the play can be removed by moving the thrust bearing to one side enough to compensate for the wear. The thrust is taken by the center main bearing, which is easily distinguished by having large flanges on each side. Remove the bolts holding the bearing to the crank case and file out the bolt holes enough to permit the bearing to be shifted. Then replace the bearing and tighten the bolts carefully.

How will running with retarded spark make the water boil in the radiator?

Operating a motor with retarded spark will cause overheating by retarding and prolonging the combustion of the charge throughout the power of expansion stroke. Thus the cylinder walls are exposed to the action of the burning gases during the whole of the stroke instead of only during the time the piston is in the region of upper dead center, as is the case when the spark is properly set. If the spark is advanced to the point of most efficient operation the spark will occur some time before dead center and maximum pressure will be reached and the combustion nearly completed just after dead center has been passed. During this time, since the piston is near the top of the stroke, the amount of surface exposed to the exhaust gases is a minimum, and, furthermore, at this point in the stroke the compression is at its height, and combustion takes place with greatest rapidity. Contrast these conditions with what happens when the spark is greatly retarded. Let us assume that ignition occurs when the piston has half completed its stroke. At this point the compression is lower, and combustion is therefore slower and will probably not be completed until after the exhaust valve opens. The hot gases are in contact with nearly the whole of the cylinder wall surface for practically one-half revolution.

But this is not all. When the spark is retarded, as in the instance just mentioned, the motor does not develop full power, therefore for a given load on the motor the throttle must be opened wider and more gasoline and air must be supplied. The extra heat generated by the combustion of the increased amount of fuel thus adds its share to the already overheated motor.

My car is equipped with electric lights and would like to know if dry batteries would work the head and tail lights. If so, how many and about how many hours would they last?

Dry batteries are not suited for lighting the head and tail lights. This method would be entirely too expensive, as the number of batteries you would require would be great and their life short. Take your storage battery to a battery repair man that you are certain is an expert—if possible take it to a service station maintained by the maker of your battery—and have it examined. It may be that all it needs is an overhauling to make it as good as new. But even if you must buy a new battery it is better to do this than try to use dry cells.

Is it common practice to regrind the cylinders when a motor is worn or is it better to get new pistons and rings?

All depends upon the condition of these parts. Sometimes it is advisable to regrind the cylinders, which is the case when they are worn oval. In this case the fitting of new pistons is a difficult job, and the previous troubles would return again. If the cylinders retain their circularity, then new pistons and rings may be fitted.

Is it a good plan to place graphite in the crank case with the regular oil?

Graphite shows excellent results when used as a lubricant for the motor. Its action is one of a filler, the minute holes in the cylinder being filled in with the graphite, thus reducing friction and wear. Some owners use ordinary flake graphite, while others prefer the defoliated form.

There is a swishing sound issuing from the neighborhood of the right front wheel of my car when it is in motion. It seems to occur once every revolution. What can be causing it?

There are two very likely causes of such a noise. It may be due to the speedometer gears meshing too tightly or the demountable rim has a wedge loose. Jack up the wheel and rotate it slowly, and you can soon determine whether the gears are too close. If this is the case loosen up the arm that carries the driven gear and move the gear only far enough away so that the noise is eliminated. If the trouble is not found in the speedometer gears tighten up the wedges on the rim. One loose wedge will make a noise similar to that you have described, due to the lack of support at this point.

What, in your opinion, is the best way to crank a motor, with the throttle open or nearly closed?

It is preferable to crank the motor with the throttle only opened a small amount, say an inch or an inch and a quarter movement on the quadrant. With some carburetors it is impossible to start the motor with the throttle wide open, while with others it is generally done with difficulty.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back-ache or Bladder bothers—Meat forms uric acid.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful of a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

What Paranoia Is

New York, June 29.—The United Press asked Dr. Austin Flint, world famous alienist to explain just what constitutes paranoia, the disease which the state contends Harry Thaw is suffering from. Here it is:

By DR. AUSTIN FLINT

Paranoia is a chronic progressive psychosis occurring mostly in adult life, characterized by the general development of a stable, progressive system of delusions without marked mental deterioration, clouding of consciousness or disorder of thought, will or conduct.

Recovery I have never seen in the observation of more than a thousand cases.
